IP_SpaceMon Crack+ Patch With Serial Key

IP SpaceMon provides a simple interface for monitoring a network's free space. Designed to let you know whether your storage disks are running low, you can configure SpaceMon to monitor most systems on the network. SpaceMon can notify you of any Internet Protocol (IP) traffic that moves to and from a specified network resource, and optionally send email alerts when the specified amount of disk space is low. IP SpaceMon Features: - Monitor network resources such as shared folders, volume mounts, mapped drives, CD-ROMs, and other resources - Track Internet Protocol (IP) traffic to and from the specified network resource - Monitor the amount of available disk space for different resources and optionally send email alerts if a resource runs below a specified amount of free space Optional Features: - Track other resources such as printers and file servers - Monitoring for Windows NT/2000/XP - Monitoring of attached Internet Protocol (IP) network devices - Send email alerts to you by e-mail when a resource drops below a specified amount of free space - Automatically close processes once a resource is restored to a full disk capacity - Automatically collect and archive your reports with SpaceMon Reporting Please visit my website for more details and to download SpaceMon. Monitor network shares under Windows 7. Network Shares are a place where you can share a file or folder of information with other computers on your network. These shares are also called Network Storage or Network Storage Area. They reside on a server or you can add them to a Windows Vista or Windows XP computer. Some examples of Network Shares include Desktop, Documents, Music, Photo Gallery and Videos. Since Network Shares are similar to traditional file shares, you can configure them just like a standard file share. You can map a Network Share to a drive letter on your local computer. You can also configure a Network Share to be monitored with SpaceMon and have your Network Share monitored from the familiar Windows Explorer. You can then monitor the size of a drive or folder on a shared network drive from the Windows Explorer. When the size of the network share drops below your specified level of free space, you will receive notification. In addition to being able to monitor the size of network share with the Windows Explorer, you can monitor the size of network shares through SpaceMon. Network Shares Features: - Monitor Network Shares including mapped drives and volumes - Test the amount of free space on shares - Monitor network shares added to Windows Vista and Windows XP - Monitor network shares

What's New in the IP_SpaceMon?

* Checks your drives to see if they are being used as a server or other device. * Alerts you and runs a quick scan to see if any network resources are out of free space * Blocks any attempt to "try and use" a network drive or if you want to prevent it completely. * Auto-subscriptions are the property of 100%Free, it is free to use but we do not support it directly. Please contact the 100%Free forums to obtain a support contract, we cannot guarantee support to not everyone. Known Bugs or Issues: * When a user accesses a network drive, the drive will be checked. * Active Scanning will cause the audio loop back to start, this needs to be checked. It would be nice to have it stop and display the volume or disconnect from the network drive. * Windows Update might mess the system up, if you start it, the other systems will not start, this is just a warning and not a fix. Screen Shots: * SpaceMon, with the monitor locked. * SpaceMon, with the monitor locked and the alarm on. Enjoy! If you like the program, please review it from the list below, so I can continue to improve it. Please donate if you like the program. All donations will be split equally between SpaceMon and RISYS* * SpaceMon is 100%Free and RISYS is 100%Non-profit
