About This Game

Game Features:

Locomotion Movement:

Note: This game uses locomotion for player movement (no teleportation). This is by necessity, but it also contributes to the realism of the game. To move around, use the trackpad/joystick (up is forward, down is backward, etc.) You can go 1.5x faster by holding down the trigger button while moving.

Throwing:

The stone speed (weight) is determined by how fast you are moving when you release the stone, as well as what you do with your hands (you can give it an extra shove if you feel like it at the point of release). You also determine the amount of spin on the stone at the time of release, just like in real life! Simply give the stone twist as you release it. The amount that the stone curls is based on both the realtime linear and angular velocities of the stone.

Sweeping:

Yes, you actually get to sweep in this game as well! Influence the speed of the stone (and thus the amount of curl as well) by sweeping in front of the stone while it is moving. For those who are new to curling, sweeping in front of the stone makes it go faster and want to curl less. You can even turn on sweeping particles to help visualize the effects of sweeping. Red particles indicate a significant effect from sweeping, green particles indicate a moderate effect, and blue particles indicate a minor effect.

Unlockables:

Use rewards to unlock various stones, brooms, and even new ice surfaces!

Game Modes:

Throwing Challenges:

Throw the stones in these various challenges to hone your skills and earn rewards. There are no brooms in this mode, so be careful of how hard you throw the stone.

Sweeping Challenges:

In this challenge mode you sweep the stone into the designated areas. The stone will be thrown automatically, so your focus here is on controlling the speed/curl of the stone.

Play Against CPU:

Take on the CPU and earn rewards! There are two difficulty levels to choose from.

Local Multiplayer:

Play head-to-head with a friend using the same headset. Earn rewards for each game completed.

Online Multiplayer:

Connect with other online players for some added fun. There are no set rules in this mode, so you can play however you like!

English

You know, I bought VR to like explore Skyrim in all it's Glory, reenact my army days of fumbling to reload a magazine while being shot in or around my face, to have new experiences like shooting anthropomorphic sausages with realistic weaponry, and to watch pornography in high definition and multiple dimensions.

But for some reason I've found that it's the little experiences that keep me coming back. Forklift Simulator 2019, which is a real thing. Or making pottery in VR. These are the things I actually tend to spend most of my hours on even though I had no interest in them. I practiced BADMITTON for like 4 hours the other day.

And then we have Curling. The universal joke of the olympics, the "what can we make that's more lame then bowling" of sports, and yet again here I find myself just wanting to put down Contractors and Onward and Pavlov, and just brush some ice.

This isn't even meant as a funny or sarcastic review even though it's kind of tongue and cheek. If you are like me and notice you like to do things in VR that aren't your usual hardcore gaming stuff but for whatever reason relaxing, then this is the droid you are looking for. It's simple, very well done, and cheap as hell. I'm going to rate this with the official Dj Khallid "If you don't have any idea what the rules of curling are but aren't playing this pretending like you do, then really you just played yourself fam". 5/7, a perfect score.
